Summary of reasons for decision:

The computer image file printout shows a teenage girl posed for the camera in a studio-type backdrop. She is seen from the waist up and what can be seen of her body is naked. She is covering her breasts with her arm and looking at the camera in a confident manner. The image does not appear exploitative and there is nothing particularly sexual about the way she is posed. Overall, the image is not reasonably capable of being regarded as sexual in nature in terms of s3(1A) of the Films, Videos and Publications Classification Act 1993 (FVPC Act).

As the publication raises no issues under s3(1), s3A or s3B of the FVPC Act, it must therefore be classified as unrestricted. This classification is consistent with the right to freedom of expression as set out in s14 of the New Zealand Bill of Rights Act 1990.
